The Long Walk
for Robert Bringhurst
And now you know that it won’t turn out as it should,
that what you did was not enough, that ignorance, old evil, is enforced and willed, and loved, that it is used to manufacture madness, that it is the aphrodisiac of power and the crutch of lassitude, you, an ordinary heart, just functional, who knows that no one’s chosen by the gods, the aspens and the blue-eyed grass have voices of their own, what will you do,
now that you sense the path unraveling beneath you?
Sky unraveling, unraveling the sea, the sea that still sees everywhere and looks at every thing — not long. What will you do, you, heart, who know the gods don’t flee, that they can only be denied.
Who guess their vengeance.
It has been a long hill, heart.
But now the view is good.
Or don’t you still believe the one sin is refusal, and refusal to keep seeking when refused?

Come, step closer to the edge, then.

You must look, heart. You must look.
